- Check more than one database for the article. If it is ‘citation only’ in ProQuest, EBSCO may have the full-text (ILL should be a last resort when your search doesn’t locate the article)

- If you can’t find it in any database, copy and paste the entire citation into an email to the library. ISSNs (journal identification numbers) or DOI’s (article identification numbers) are always welcome if they are available – makes processing the request faster

- Turnaround time can be one to many days, depending on the lending library; i.e., allow plenty of time to collect resources
Off-campus students

- Books cannot be interlibrary loaned for off-campus students

- WorldCat.org allows you to search thousands of libraries for materials, then go to local library to request the item
  - Can also search by zip code to see if the item is located near you
  - Colorado Springs students can email ILL request to the library

- Utilize your local library for books
Use Worldcat.org to help you find books, then search by zip code to locate the books in a library nearby.
